Call for participation in the Customs Integrity Perception Survey

The Sri Lanka Customs invites you to participate in the Customs Integrity Perception Survey (CIPS) taking place online from 17 to 31 August. The CIPS is a World Customs Organization (WCO) tool to assess the perceived level of integrity, as well as to further strengthen integrity across the Sri Lanka Customs. Integrity is one of our core values and plays an important role in strengthening the local economy. Integrity is reflected in our strategic planning, representing our beliefs, our culture, and the way we want to be recognized.

Your opinion matters and can make a change, so please take only 15 minutes to participate in the survey!

The survey is being rolled out via the WCO CIPS Online Tool to guarantee anonymity of answers and data privacy. You can participate in the survey via a link sent out by the Sri Lanka Customs. Throughout all stages of the survey, your response will be kept confidential, anonymous and secure.

We count on the engagement of all staff in this important initiative, which will help us to implement strategic actions for an even more ethical and transparent bureau, and to fulfill our vision of becoming a modernized and credible customs administration that is among the world's best.
